TRAORDINARY ACTION OF THE

STEWARDS. Sloane is a jockey of exceptional intelligence and ability. Most of the jockeys who are now riding on American racetracks do not know the differbetween a syllogism and syzygy, and have never read Plato. Sloane has brains and judg-ment, and hands and seat, and balance and discretion, and foresight and knowledge of pace and What does Flynn, the starter, have? blasted and withered record as a politician What do the stewards at Sheepshead Bay have? The polished courtesy, the stately dignity, the majestic bearing, the elaborate etiquette of Versailles in the days of Louis XIV. Anything else?

Sloane was set down at Brighton because Flynt did not like him. Yesterday Flynn made a report to the stewards at Sheepshead Bay to the effect that Sloane had repeatedly disobeyed him at the post. Upon what meat has this our Caesar Flynn been feeding that he has become so great? Is he a new Colossus of Rhodes, and must ordinary human beings keep between his massive legs and shrink in terror from his Titanic frown? Sloane has been riding wonderfully well this year. He has proved that he is a Triton among minnows in comp with the majority of American jockeys. He has winning many races for his employers and for the backers of his mounts that almost any other American jockey would have lost. Perhaps he has been winning too many races to please Flynn and Flynn's friends. Possibly the stewards do not like to see Sloane win so many races. Taral, apparently, offended the starter and the stewards at Sheepshead Bay in a similar way last year. He rode so well and won so many races that the starter made a complaint against him, and Taral was put on the ground for a few days. The Sheepshead Bay stewards yesterday, on the complaint of the starter, put Sloane on the ground for five race days. Will it not be an entertaining sight to see certain racetrack stewards playing golf next year with a dustpan and whiskbroom? Some of them may not be in urgent demand for the stewardship of races in 1897.

The public that supports racing and by its support of racing pays turf salaries was enthusiastic for Taral when he won so many races last year, even if the starter and the stewards were hostile The public is fond of jockeys that wir races, and it has a strong affection for Sloane because he rides far better than any other American ockey except Taral, and because he wins many races, and because in every way he proves himself to be a jockey worthy of confidence, esteem and admiration. He won four races yesterday, on Irish Reel, Refugee, Lake Shore and The Dragon. What was his reward? He was set down for five racing days on complaint of the starter. Flynn was once Speaker of the New-Jersey Legislature. Perhaps It might be just as well for Flynn not to be too prodigal with his complaints. Is he altogether certain that his record at Trenton is so clear that Republican investigating committee of the New-certain that his record at Trenton is so clear that a Republican investigating committee of the New-Jersey Legislature might not be able by diligent research to revive some unpleasant memories? The weather yesterday was the best that any August, no matter how generous, could possibly bestow. But the comely grounds and buildings of the Coney Island Jockey Club did not contain many thousands of people. The reason for the small attendance of spectators is not difficult to discover. Any intellectual investigator who has watched the management of racing affairs in this State since the close of the Morris Park meeting cannot be at a loss for explanations of the cause of limited attendance at a racecourse. These are hard times, and the average American lingers before he consents to pay $\forall for a race-track ticket, when he suspects that a few owners, trainers, jockeys and horses may perchance take a slant occasienally. Confidence is the corner-stone of all prosperity. When American farmers, planters, wase-carners, manufacturers, merchants, capitalists, bankers and employers of all classes regain confidence, business will flourish once more, and the whole country will be comfortable. When confidence in the American turf is completely restored, then race-track salaries may possibly be doubled and race-track dividends may possibly be quadrupled. But not until then. And when Flynn and the stewards unite to put on the ground a jockey who won four races out of seven in a single afternoon, then confidence falls in a fit.

No, gentlemen, that is not the right way to go to work if you want to get Americans to go to the races. That method might be effective in central Bolivia or in North and Eastern Spitzbergen, But not right here in the Greater New-York. You ought to consider that Americans are not cutting their first set of teeth on a corai in these days. Americans in this part of the country have escaped from their cradles—that is, all Americans whose support of the turf is worth having, have escaped. And when these set one afternoon, they will not only wink. They will also whistle.

The first two races yesterday were for two-year-olds that had never won a race, to be ridden by jockeys that had never ridden a winner. The first fell to Chic, who was well backed. Contractor ran second and King Bon was third. In the second Doomful, from the Fleischmenn stable, had many friends. But Doomful is full of deviliry, and much jostling and crowding occurred at the turn into the homestretch. Doomful fell, but neither the colt nor his rider was hurt scriously. McCafferty's colt Inspirer captured first honors.

Sloane rode Irish Reel superbly in the third race, Refugee in the fifth, Lake Shore in the sixth and The Dragon in the seventh, and was successful in them all. It was a dazzling series of successes. His recompense was to be set down for five racing days on the complaint of the starter. What a starter and what stewards!

RACING SCENES AND INCIDENTS. NOTES AND OBSERVATIONS OF A VETERAN TURFMAN.

"Tod" Sloane won four races yesterday and was promptly suspended from riding for five days by the "If Sloane had won five races the chances are that he would have been ruled off the turf forever. In al seriousness, let this question be asked: Was Sloane suspended because he is too intelligent to accept anything but a good start, and because h gives everybody who bets on his mounts an honest, skilful ride for his money? Perhaps Thomas Flynn is unable to discern the difference between jockeys who are anxious to get a fair start and some of the nickel-in-the-slot jockeys who do not appear to care about anybody or anything unlesss they are inspired by the nickel. In justice to the race-going public have confidence in Sloane, the stewards might have experimented successfully by suspending Flynn for a eek or two and giving somebody else a chance t start the horses who perhaps might possess ability ntelligence and energy enough to appreciate the fa jockeys are trying to get off than with the dolts, du lards and sluggards who cause most of the delays at the post. It is evident that somebody does not like Sloane, and that no effort will be spared to make it hot for him because he is a popular favorite.

Charles A. Mills sailed for England yesterday. Mr. Mills made many friends during his short stay this country and created a favorable impress of English turfmen. He was under the watchful care of J. E. McDonald, Anthony Brady and John Kelly. Consequently he was not neglected in the smallest Fortune was kind to him, and he won his ides. Mr. Mills talked freely about his yearling purchases and said: "I intend to send some of them o Morton, who trains for Mr. Croker, and some to a trainer named Robinson who formerly trained some horses which I owned and raced. I believe that many English horse-owners would purchase yearlings to attend the sales. Mrs. Lily Langtry was extremely desirous of attending the sales this year, but did not have time to cross the Atlantic to do so. Mr. Mills was highly pleased with his visit and intends to return next year.

The attendance was small. In order to empty the grandstand completely the stewards should suspend Taral and Clayton without delay. There were twenty-four entries in the first race, a fivefurlongs dash for two-year-old maidens, to be ridden by jockeys who had never ridden a winner. The entries were divided, and an extra race was given. The first race was won by Chic. Contractor Checkaga 1.50 at 1.50 furlongs dash for two-year-old maidens, ridden by jockeys who had never ridden a winner. The entries were divided, and an extra race was was second and King Bon third. Chic was the favorite at 2 to 1. In the second division Doomful was the favorite, but fared badly in the race, as Roby, his jockey, fell off at the head of the homestretch. The race was won by John J. McCafferty's Inspirer. L. B. was second and Absentee third. Roby escaped with a few scratches. W. Herder, who rode Absentee, attracted the attention of several turfmen, as he rode like a veteran. The third race was a heavy betting affair. Beldemere was the favorite, but frish Reel was quoted at a short price. Kennel had some support, and a few bettors took flyers on Damien. To a good start Sloane sent Irish Reel to the front at the end of a furlong, and he was never afterward headed, and won handily at the finish by a length from Beldemere, who was second throughout the race. Damien finished third. Aurelian, who was the favorite at 4 to 1 on, won the fourth race from flagfall to finish. Carib was second and Tomoka third.

The fifth race caused some lively speculation, as every horse in the race had a following. Refugee, with Sloane in the saddle, was the medium of some heavy plunging, and closed a firm favorite. Tremargo and Hazlet were also well played. Tremargo rushed into the lead at the fall of the flag, and led until a furlong from home, when Sloane gave Refugee his head, and passed him easily, winning the race in handsome style. Tremargo was second and fur-handsome style. Tremargo was second and Hazlet third.

The sixth race was a handicap at a mile and a furlong. Lake Shore, with Sloane up, was made the favorite. Belmar and Lucania were well supported. Lake Shore had a trifle the best of the start, and led from start to finish, winning with amazing ease from Pearl Song, who was second, while Helmar was a poor third.

The seventh race resulted in another victory for Sloane, who landed The Dragon, the favorite, a winner by a short head, after a furious battle with Volley in the homestretch. Sir Francis was third. James Rowe is deeply grieved at the broakdown of One I Love. The filly worked a mile handily in 1:44 on Tuesday morning, but when she returned to the stable it was discovered that she had broken down and that her injuries were such that it is likely she will be retired to the stud.

GAMES YESTERDAY. Brooklyn, 10; Pittsburg, 7, New-York, 8; Chicago, 5, Cleveland, 13, Washington, 6 (first game), Cincinnati, 9; Boston, 7.

The interesting features in the baseball world yesterday were the defeat of the champion Orioles which gave the lead in the Lengue race to the Porko politans, and the fact that both the home teams hap pened to win a game. The contest at the Polo Grounds was long-drawn-out and uninteresting, and the game was marred by an incident which will not help to strengthen the fading interest taken in the doings of the ball players in this neighborhood. The game was between the New-York and Chicago nines, and the home team won after a loosely played

The chief incident happened in the sixth inning. Tiernan sent the ball sailing into right field over the ropes. The hit was good for a home run, but a spectator thought that Tiernan might not make a nome run, and he kicked the ball away from Ryan, the Chicago fielder. Tiernan made the circuit of the bases, but the Chicago players protested, and the umpire properly ordered Tiernan back to third base. Ryan meanwhile had started after the man who had kicked the ball, with the apparent intention of chastising him. Other spectators started after Ryan, and it looked for an instant as if the Chicago er would be roughly handled. The police finally took a hand, and peace was restored. Had the police done their duty in the first place Had the police done their duty in the first place there would have been no trouble. There was plenty of room for the spectators on the stands, and they should not have been allowed to stand around the ropes. The police arrangements about the grounds are, however, on the whole, about as ineffective as the management of the club. The crowd about the ropes intimidate opposing players, which is neither fair nor sportsmanlike.

Friend retired in the second inning, and Terry took his place. Donahue had a finger split in the third, and Kittridge relieved him. The score:

NATIONAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT. NONE OF THE CRACKS DEFEATED IN YESTER DAY'S PLAY.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19 (Special).—The heavy rain last night made everything bright and fresh for the players in the National lawn tennis tournament this Although there was no such attraction as the championship match of yesterday, society was out in force and watched the weeding-out process with interest. During the day all the matches in the first round were completed, and from now on the tournament will rapidly narrow down to the cracks around whom the real struggle The grand-stand court was intended t furnish the feature of the day's play with the match between Stevens and G. M. Miles, of Orange, N. J. It proved a contest too one-sided to be exciting, however, and did not compare in point of interest with some of the others later in the day.

Dwight Davis, a St. Louis player, added considerably to his reputation to-day by the brilliant way in which he handled R. D. Wrenn, the ex-champion. His strength lay chiefly in the force and accuracy of his ground strokes, while his smashing, thoug of his ground strokes, while his smashing, though erratic, was exceedingly brilliant. Wrenn found him more than an equal during several parts of the struggle. Davis captured the second set, and was within a point of the third when Wrenn by a strong effort recovered himself and finally won. The tournament this year seems to be remarkable for the number of young players who have come forward since last season and who are now proving themselves dangerous even to the cracks.

Larned, who is regarded on all sides as the strongest favorite for the all-comers' prize, was again successful to-day, defeating E. Stille, a well-known Philadelphia player, in straight sets. G. P. Sheldon, the Yale crack, took a well-carned victory from J. C. Neely, in which the former's smashing was noteworthy. E. P. Fischer, the Tuxedo champion, was another of the day's winners. He was pitted against W. Jordan, who dropped out of the race in a tame fight of three sets. Fischer's work was the heat he had shown this season on grass courts, and from present indications he should meet Larned in the semi-finals. The day's score:

Championship singles (preliminary round)—R. D. Wrenn.

ST. ANDREW'S GOLF TOURNAMENTS. A TIE IN BOTH CLASSES OF THE CONTESTS OVER THE YONKERS COURSE.

The fifth monthly handicap contest for both Class A and Class B members of the St. Andrew's Golf Club was played yesterday over the club course, near Yonkers. By a singular coincidence

In the first J. C. Ten Eyck and Daniel Chauncey finished with a net score of 88 strokes. Each played a fine game, Ten Eyck closing the eighteen holes a fine game, Ten Eyck closing the eighteen holes in 90 strokes, his handicap being 2, and Chauncey taking 32 for the course, his handicap being 4. In Class B, W. E. Glynn and C. E. Ryecroft tied for first honors, with net scores of 85. The latter is a new player, and had the highest handicap allowed, 30 strokes. Glynn was allowed 18.

The weather was delightful for golfing, the greens in fine condition, and the number of players for this season very good. The summaries:

THE PRACTICE OF PAYING PROFESSIONAL RIDERS TO AFPEAR AT RACE MEETS DENOUNCED. Philadelphia, Aug. 19.-In addition to his regular weekly bulletin, Chairman Gideon has issued the fol-lowing special bulletin: "The practice of paying cer-tain professional riders a bonus for their appearance at race meets is believed to be a distinct detriment to sport and calculated to ruin the business both of the men and of the promoters. Race promoters, therefore, are required to enter into an agreement that they will pay nothing whatever, except in prizes, for the appearance of any rider. Failure to live up to this rule will result in prompt withdrawal of sanction, and demands for money for appearance by riders themselves will be treated under rule 17, track rules.

IT IS SAID THAT HE WANTS A DIVORCE AND THAT MISS MAXINE ELLIOTT IS TO BE MARRIED TO HIM.

nother woman that a certain person whom they both knew was of a very dramatic nature. The other answered: "Dramatic? Not at all; she has been married to the same man for ten years" te being married to the same man or to the same woman for ten years does not absolutely exclude one from the dramatic world, it does confine one in these times, to an extremely small corner of it. an actor that he scarcely needed the certificate of genuineness which was conveyed in dispatches from San Francisco published yesterday to the effect that he was seeking a divorce from his wife. Nella Goodwin. It should be noted, indeed, that a livorce court record is by no means necessarily commensurate with histrionic ability. On the contrary, the court and the parsonage are open alterstage, and gossip concerns herself impartially with the lowest, as well as with the highest. These are marks of democratic advancement. Any one whose ears are open to gossip must have noted the daring with which actors begin a new experience, so oon after the last one is ended that one seems, in deed, to tread upon the other's heels.

Mr. Goodwin has not been without experience of married happiness and unhappiness. Some four or five years ago there were stories told of his efforts to get into his own house in West End-ave., which was held by his wife. He employed methods which were a happy mixture of those of the amateur burglar, the amateur detective and the professional actor. The whole situation was, as has been hinted, characteristic of the professional actor, but a little more professionalism in the other directions, particularly that of the burglar, might have been of more avail. For the combination has been here cailed a happy one, with reference only to its picturesqueness, not to its success.

It is well known that when Mr. Goodwin is in his usual and normal state of mind he thinks that he chose the wrong branch of his profession, and regrets that he is not a tragedian instead of a comedian. At that time, however, he saw what advantage he would have gained if he had studied the real-safe-cracking-burgiar school of acting. For he did not succeed in getting into his own house. So effectual was its defence that Mrs. Goodwin almost succeeded in keeping out reporters, though there is no proof that she ever wisned to take such an extreme measure as that. The trouble was that Mr. Goodwin, in an amateur detective part of his operations, assumed various disguises, coming around to the house now and then with a confident "they'll-never-know-me-now" sort of air, but always getting found out before he got found in, and therefore always staying out. Accordingly every innocent reporter had to convince Mrs. Goodwin and the guards that his make-up was not a mask before he was allowed to squeeze through the crack of the iron basement door. That was the expense at which the hungry public was fed with the news. he chose the wrong branch of his profession, and the news.

The San Francisco dispatch also says that there is a report that Miss Maxine Elliott is to be married to Mr. Goodwin. She is a member of his company, which is now in Australia. The wife from whom Mr. Goodwin is now seeking a divorce is his second. The first was Miss Ellia Weathersby, who died about ten years ago. Miss Elliott is well
